Lawrence A. Babb, John E. Cort, Michael W. Meister : Desert Temples: Sacred Centers of Rajasthan in Historical, Art-Historical, and Social Contexts before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Desert Temples: Sacred Centers of Rajasthan in Historical, Art-Historical, and Social Contexts:

The essays in this book represent the fruits of an interdisciplinary study of four temples in Rajasthan, India, jointly conducted by Lawrence A. Babb (anthropology), John E. Cort (religious studies), and Michael W. Meister (art history). The temples were chosen because they are quite ancient yet are also vibrantly functioning today. The results of the authors' research dramatically vindicate the idea that when disciplines are combined, the result is greater than the sum of the parts. The book shows that a functioning temple is many things at once. More than a mere physical structure, a temple is a center of economic activity, a focal point for political power, and a confluence of social relationships of every conceivable sort. It is also an object of aesthetic contemplation and judgment. And perhaps above all, a temple is a locus of sacred power that evokes deeply felt responses in those who worship there. Desert Temples weaves these many threads together in a volume unique in the extent to which it stresses the holistic approach to the study of India's sacred centers.

About the Author Dr Lawrence A. Babb is currently Professor of Anthropology and Asian Studies at Amherst College, Massachusetts, where he has spent most of his career. His previous books are "The Divine Hierarchy: Popular Hinduism in Central India "(1975)", Redemptive Encounters: Three Modern Styles in the Hindu Tradition "(1986) and "Absent Lord: Ascetics and Kings in a Jain Ritual Culture "(1996). He has also co-edited "Media and The Transformation of Religion in South Asia "(1995) [with Susan S. Wadley] and "Multiple Histories: Culture and Society in the Study of Rajasthan "(2002) [with Michael Meister and Varsha Joshi].
