Sobibor was a Nazi Jewish killing camp. Easy to read. Hard to put down. Puts you right there. Personal stories.

This true story of a revolt at a Nazi death camp, newly updated, is a memorable and moving saga, full of anger and anguish, a reminder never to forget (San Francisco Chronicle). On October 14, 1943, six hundred Jews imprisoned in Sobibor, a secret Nazi death camp in eastern Poland, revolted. They killed a dozen SS officers and guards, trampled the barbed wire fences, and raced across an open field filled with anti-tank mines. Against all odds, more than three hundred made it safely into the woods. Fifty of those men and women managed to survive the rest of the war.

From Library Journal Information on the Sobibor concentration camp was sketchy at best until Rashke tracked down and interviewed as many of the survivors as possible. The result, said LJ's reviewer, is "the first reliable history of this camp. A well-researched and well-written work" (LJ 10/1/82). Copyright 1996 Reed Business Information, Inc.
