Providence Providence : First Report of Record Commissioners Relative to the Early Town Records (Classic Reprint) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised First Report of Record Commissioners Relative to the Early Town Records (Classic Reprint):

Excerpt from First Report of Record Commissioners Relative to the Early Town Records A copy of this document is annexed, marked Appendix B. It is to be regretted that certain of the books and papers contained in these lists or schedules are not to be found in the possession of the city, having doubtless been lost, as too little care was exercised in the preservation of Old papers in the early years of the town. The late John Howland, a man of intense fondness for antiquarian research in Rhode Island history, often lamented the recklessness with which the papers of the early settlers of Rhode Island had been destroyed. From a quantity thrown into the street, which he gathered up and carried to his place of business, he recovered several original letters of Roger Williams, a fact painfully illustrating how little the value of these ancient papers and documents was regarded in years gone by.
