

(Download free pdf) Islam in Black America

Islam in Black America

Edward E. Curtis IV

Download PDF / ePub / DOC / audiobook / ebooks*

#1069904 in Books Edward E Iv Curtis 2002-04-23Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 9.00 x .43 x 6.00l, .65
#File Name: 0791453707188 pagesIslam In Black America | File size: 75.Mb

Edward E. Curtis IV : Islam in Black America before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Islam in Black America:

3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Good Resource on the SubjectBy PiamonI am using this book as one of several sources for a graduate project (a study in Black Islam). My professor recognized the author and approved it as one of several on my proposed bibliography. I can't comment on the content, because I haven't read it yet, but the book has an extensive bibliography and contains ample notes/citations. This is a good scholarly source.0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy B. J. ParkerGreat buy !0 of 2 people found the following review helpful. One StarBy Andrew WexlerNot a good job.

Explores modern African-American Islamic thought within the context of Islamic history, giving special attention to questions of universality versus particularity. Many of the most prominent figures in African-American Islam have been dismissed as Muslim heretics and cultists. Focusing on the works of five of these notable figures—Edward W. Blyden, Noble Drew Ali, Elijah Muhammad, Malcolm X, and Wallace D. Muhammad—author Edward E. Curtis IV examines the origin and development of modern African-American Islamic thought. Curtis notes that intellectual tensions in African-American Islam parallel those of Islam throughout its history—most notably, whether Islam is a religion for a particular group of people or whether it is a religion for all people. In the African-American context, such tensions reflect the struggle for black liberation and the continuing reconstruction of black identity. Ultimately, Curtis argues, the interplay of particular and universal interpretations of the faith can allow African-American Islam a vision that embraces both a specific group of people and all people.

"an impressive slender volume . . . [and] an excellent resource for scholars and students interested in African American religious and intellectual history." --Journal of American History
"Curtis provides an effective paradigm to explore the history of African-American Islamic thought." --Journal of the American Academy of Religion
"a fine reinterpretation of the views of Edward Blyden, Noble Drew Ali, Elijah Muhammad, Warith Deen Muhammad, and Louis Farrakhan . . . highly recommended." --CHOICE
From the Back Cover
Many of the most prominent figures in African-American Islam have been dismissed as Muslim heretics and cultists. Focusing on the works of five of these notable figures—Edward W. Blyden, Noble Drew Ali, Elijah Muhammad, Malcolm X, and Wallace D. Muhammad—author Edward E. Curtis IV examines the origin and development of modern African-American Islamic thought. Curtis notes that intellectual tensions in African-American Islam parallel those of Islam throughout its history—most notably, whether Islam is a religion for a particular group of people or whether it is a religion for all people. In the African-American context, such tensions reflect the struggle for black liberation and the continuing reconstruction of black identity. Ultimately, Curtis argues, the interplay of particular and universal interpretations of the faith can allow African-American Islam a vision that embraces both a specific group of people and all people.
About the Author
Edward E. Curtis IV is Millennium Chair of the Liberal Arts and professor of religious studies at Indiana University—Purdue University Indianapolis (IUPUI).